Throne Of The Game

Words by Keiichiro Kodama
& San Motegi
Music by Keiichiro Kodama
Performed by HUSHBYRD

The song is about dictators/men in strong power swayed by the fate of history. Absolute monarchy/men in strong power, conceived to continue forever, will all perish in due time. Qui Shi Huang, first emperor of unified China, Louis XVI, and even our current government head. What is the force controlling the rise and fall of those men in power? Time? The people?

Throne of the game, drifting in time, floating on tide
See what happened in the past,
Lalalala, How became at last

Thousands of years ago, the reign of dictator has began
“The son of Heaven” was so fierce,
The fealty sworn by fear
Burning the books and burying the scholars who opposed
But couldn't last 15 years before his time ends

Throne of the game, drifting in time, floating on tide
See what happened in the past,
Lalalala, How became at last

Hundreds of years ago,
The king of enlightenment was annoyed
Father left him big Red,
While he concerned people's life
As to signed the constitution, and faced the revolution
Though been killed by the sword slanted by his order

Throne of the game, whoever takes the power supreme Lalalala, It's one of the names cut on the grave

Several years has passed
By ripping off his longing man
Distort the rules and laws,
Contort the people's history
Who made this throne, who let him be there
Yes we know who rules, Throne of the game

We all know, know in mind
We all know, know in mind

We all know, know in mind
We all know, know in mind
