Take This Train

Words by Keiichiro Kodama
Music by Keiichiro Kodama
Performed by HUSHBYRD

Kei made this song under the anxiety for the future of this country(world) we are living in. The driver can lead the train to where he wants, but finally, the destination will be determined by the passengers, I believe.

Keiが日本（や世界）の行く末に不安を抱いて作った曲。列車の運転士は彼の望む方向に列車を走らせることが出来る。しかし、最終的に目的地を決めるのは乗客である我々だ。

<#1>

I don't care wherever you may take this train
Some of us go, Some of us stay
I don't care wherever you may take this train
Some of us go, Some of us stay forever

Throw in the coals to fire,
Blow up the press of steam
You got the power
To lead this train as you want, so far

But train will stop sometimes
Change the route somewhere
I know the people bought the ticket
To get on to the end

I do care where you are going to take this world
Some of us go, Some of us stay
I do care where you are going to take this world
Some of us go, Some of us stay forever

Pour the fuel to fire
Blow up the steam of fear
You're going to form
A plot to split this train in two
But pride will have a fall
Siren of change will sound
I know the people use
The right to stop your train in the end

Throw in the coals to fire,
Blow up the press of steam
You got the power
To lead this train as you want, so far

But train will stop sometimes
Change the route somewhere
I know the people bought the ticket
To get on to the end
